

International Public Safety Association Releases the IPSA Journal

Goodyear, Arizona – November 30, 2017

The International Public Safety Association is pleased to announce its release of the IPSA Journal – an executive level publication for public safety officials. It is a new opportunity to publish articles about leadership issues and best practices applicable to all facets of the public safety community. The IPSA was fortunate to have a team of current and retired public safety professionals and academicians who volunteered their time to lay the foundation for this new executive-level, peer-reviewed publication.

The IPSA Journal is available to all public safety professionals. Our readers represent the entire public safety community: law enforcement, fire service, EMS, telecommunications, public works (water, sanitation, and transportation), public health, hospitals, security, private sector, and emergency management.

The IPSA has a systematic process in place for approval, rejection and resubmissions of manuscripts. The IPSA enlists peer reviewers made up of public safety practitioners and academicians with experience in scholarly writing to review all manuscripts. In this First Edition, readers will see the following peer-reviewed manuscripts:

- ❖ Standard Operating Procedures: Should Police and Fire Departments Collaborate?
- ❖ Multidisciplinary Strategies for Mitigating Occupational Stress in Public Safety Organizations
- ❖ Employment & Promotional Interviews: Structure vs Unstructured

Each manuscript was fully researched by the authors, includes a detailed literature review, offers key discussion points and they were all peer-reviewed.

It is the IPSA's vision to continually accept manuscripts and to release future editions of the IPSA Journal. We seek original manuscripts from all public safety professionals.
